Do you think HK's first-ever lockdown was 'worth it'?

Yes, definitely. Jordan is known for its old and subdivided flats, where many poor and elderly residents live. So the risk of community infection is very high.

We cannot afford to have multiple outbreaks in Hong Kong. The lockdown helped reduce the spread of the virus and raised people's awareness of personal hygiene.

The sudden lockdown affected people's lives and many of them did not know what was happening. I support mandatory testing, but there should be better planning, so people don't have to line up for food and drinks late at night and eat on the streets.

The lockdown was a waste of time and public resources.
